

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

There is provided a computer-implemented method for enabling a host to facilitate a transaction between a first party and a second party. The method comprises the steps of: (a) receiving a communication from the first party; (b)

- 5 querying a database based on the communication and obtaining a result that indicates the second party for engagement in the transaction; (c) sending a communication to the second party inviting the second party to correspond with the first party; (d) receiving a correspondence from the second party; and (e) presenting to the first party the correspondence from the second party.

10